THE INSPECTION OF CYPRESS RIVER.

The recent inspection of Cypress river by Capt. Wooten, engineer in charge of this department, was entirely satisfactory. The beauty and other possibilities of this long neglected stream was a great surprise. The cheapness by which the stream can be kept in excellent boating order was so apparent that it could be remarked. It was shown last year in a report sent to the River and Harbor Committee that navigation would save to the territory tributary to it something over one million dollars a year. In this, not much stress was placed on the iron interest, only what had been done could be used. Now is different. No estimate was then made of the quantity of ore in this iron district. This item is now estimated at over sixty million tons. This one item will be sufficient to create a business which would justify expending a million dollars on Cypress river if it were necessary to make navigation. But it will only cost about one-half of that amount. The great interest in the question not only by our own people, but by Senator Culberson, Congressman Sheppard and Watkins of Louisiana, Mayor Bernstein of Shreveport, and Mr. Scovill, speaks plainer than words can possibly do that all now realize the great importance of the improvement. Not only by Texas, but Louisiana as well. The fight to reach this point has been a hard one, and now that the leaders realize the great losses the country has sustained, will surely do all in their power to make the proper amendments. The inspection was the most important ever made of Cypress river, and it will surely bring forth the best of results.

The Texas Farmers' Congress will hold its regular annual meeting at College Station, July 23, 24, 25. This meeting brings together representatives of the various organizations of the agricultural interests of the State. The separate societies hold their own meetings in sections and discuss matters relating to their general lines of work. Then general meetings are held, bringing together the entire membership of the Congress, and in these matters of general interest are discussed. The exchange of ideas thus made possible is a strong force in the movement for more scientific methods of agriculture.

We have received an article headed "A Statement of Facts" and addressed "To the Daughters of the Republic of Texas and the People of Texas" sent from Houston, and contains all the facts about the trouble with the "Old Alamo." We are asked to please publish, but it is impossible to do so as its length would take several columns in the IMPLICATE.

The subscribers of many places are holding meetings and refusing to pay the raise put on them by the telephone company.

Big Beets.
John Hudson of Norwood, a small town below Jefferson, is the champion beet raiser of the State. He has growing in his garden two beets that are estimated to weigh from fifty to seventy pounds each. One of the beets is about eight feet in circumference and stands fifteen inches above the ground. They are beets of the old kind, but has been constantly fertilized and watered. They are still growing and bid fair to grow until Hudson will be compelled to move his garden fence.—Pittsburg Gazette.

To the Voters of Marion County—Expressions from Many Sources.
To the Editor of the IMPLICATE.
Huntsville has been a prohibition town for four years, and instead of it being hurt in a business way, it has improved. So said one of its bankers.

Fifteen of the leading business men of Snyder in Curry county state that the closing of the saloons has added much to it in a moral, social and material way.

The County Attorney of Wood county writes that the taxable values have increased nearly one million under local option and show a marked decrease in the number of chattel and crop mortgages given. Business men who voted against the law now frankly admit that business is on the increase. He states also that crime is rapidly decreasing.

Montague.—The cashier of the First Citizens bank, says that prohibition has been worth much to Montague Co. It is well enforced.

The people of Waxahachie declare that prohibition pays; that since the saloons have been closed the population has grown steadily. The town has advanced in a material way.

A marked improvement all along the line. Kniss and Waxahachie went dry by large majorities. The people of El Paso county said by the votes that those who have tried local option will not be willing to go back to the old regime of the saloon.

Johnson county has found a decided decrease in crime since local option has gone into effect. Cleburne declares laws are well enforced.

The County Judge of Georgetown writes that the property values and business have improved wonderfully since local option went into effect.

Four real estate dealers of Taylor signs their names to an article stating that while the saloons were open there were vacant houses, but since closed there is a scramble for both residences and business property, and all property is bringing better rents.

From Kaufman, Tex.—Nothing could induce us to have the saloons. Great improvement in every way.

McKinney.—The results of local option have been satisfactory to a large majority of the citizens of the county, business men, bankers, property owners, farmers and capitalists.

Bell County.—Crime has increased since the saloons were reopened. It is said by some of the best citizens that one hundred times as much whiskey is being drunk as was under the no saloon law.

Denton tells the same tale of improvement in business property and in morals with no saloons.

Eighty business men of Grandview say that their town would not under any consideration have the saloons back again. What does this prove?

Jacksonville is gratified over the decrease in drinking since prohibition went into effect.

Twenty-four of Mexico's best business men sign a statement that their town is growing more rapidly since saloons were closed.

Fifty-four leading citizens of Coryell county give their names, declaring prohibition has not hurt the town, but has proven a blessing.

From Hillsboro—Town more prosperous with prohibition.

Williamson county has voted out saloons.

If the foregoing towns and counties are greatly benefited from a business standpoint by a decrease in crime, made better both morally and socially, then why will not the county of Marion and the old town of Jefferson be improved in like manner? Answer why?

Are we not likely in need of improvement mentally, morally, socially and in a business way. Answer again. These are facts. Voters, think of them. One Interested.

Uvalde, Texas, April 19, 1907.
To who it may concern: This is to say that Uvalde county has been under prohibition rule for more than twelve last past, and during that time this city, as well as the county at large, has enjoyed an unprecedented period of prosperity. Property of all kinds has materially enhanced in values and much of it has more than doubled in value.

During said twelve months fully one hundred new houses have been built; many new people have come into the city; four new mercantile business houses have been inaugurated; an electric light plant, an ice factory, a steam laundry and a mattress factory have been established. We have two national banks in this city, and during said twelve months their deposits have increased from $375,000 to over $600,000.

The city is now preparing to erect a $40,000 school building, and also two new churches are in immediate contemplation. Of course, we do not attribute all our prosperity to the fact that we have prohibition, but we do assert that prohibition has not in the least retarded the progress of the city, but rather has materially assisted it by drawing to our county and city a moral, intelligent class of citizenship, which class usually vouchsafes prosperity wherever it predominates.

Under the new "C. O. D. Package Law," prohibition is effective, and does prohibit.

W D LOVE, County Judge.
C W PERKINS, Pastor M E Church, South.
D W BARNHILL, Postmaster.
I L MARTIN, Atty. at Law, Ex-Judge Thirty-Eighth Judicial District.

W KINCAID, Pres Uvalde National Bank.
We, J. H. Shope and W. H. Strahan, have been in this city long enough to vouch for every thing that has been said by these good people. We are not afraid to plant our money in the city of Uvalde, or in Uvalde county.

Yours for prohibition,
J. H. SHOPE.
W. H. STRAHAN.

Miss Ethel Barmore Dunlop, of New Orleans, and Misses Frances and Abby Blocker, of M. rehab, passed through the city Thursday enroute to Marmosa Hall, near Leigh, Texas, where they go as guests of Miss Mary Steele Blocker in a house party. This party is given in honor of Miss Ethel Barmore Dunlop, a charming society belle of New Orleans, La. The social sphere of Marshall, Jefferson and the surrounding cities look forward to this grand affair with much pleasure, and it is needless to say that all who are so fortunate as to be numbered among the guests will enjoy a rare treat, as extensive preparations have been made at "Marmosa" for this occasion.

A Remedy.
For the benefit of some of our readers who have lost chickens by some disease, we give the following answer to an inquiry:

Dallas, Texas, July 11, 1907.
"The Plymouth Rocks referred to are suffering from sleepy disease caused from intestinal worms. This can be easily remedied by treating them with six or eight drops of turpentine given in half a teaspoon full of water in tablespoonful doses every two hours. Use hypo-sulphite of soda, one table spoonful to half a gallon of water in the drinking water of the fowls as a preventive of this disease."

J. H. Connell,
Editor Poultry Dept. Farm and Ranch.

Died.
In Howelton, Wednesday, July 17th, at 9 o'clock p. m., Mrs. Lucile Dodd, wife of Mr. Thomas Dodd, and daughter Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Henderson, died after a lingering illness. In her death three little children are left motherless, a devoted husband, parents and other relatives left to mourn her loss. May they be comforted.

The burial took place at New Prospect cemetery Thursday at 11 a. m.

A memorial by "A Friend" will be given in next issue.

The financial statement of the city is given in this issue, and goes to show that her officials are trying to keep all indebtedness paid as means will permit.

Miss Mimie Eberstadt is in Atlanta, the guest of Miss Vera Johnson.

A Card.
To the R. E. Chapter U. D. C. and the Ladies of Jefferson:
I cannot possibly express in words my appreciation of the courtesies extended me at the unveiling of the Confederate monument.

Only the heart can feel what the tongue cannot speak or pen transcribe.

I accept the testimonials of your regard with both pleasure and gratitude. The biquet was lovely, but not so lovely as the angelic little girl whose tiny hands presented it. The flowers have faded, but the pleasure they gave me is still in my heart and I shall treasure the memory of the R. E. Lee Chapter U. D. C. of Jefferson.

Texas, while time shall last with me.

You ladies now have a sacred charge, the beautiful and impressive Confederate monument. I implore you to never forget that it guards the memory of brave men and protect it from vandal hands by enclosing with substantial fencing, beautify the park with rarest flowers that every passerby may realize how Southern women honor Confederate soldiers. Teach the children the gallantry and bravery for which it stands and they will be pleased to assist in caring for it.

I was glad to be in Jefferson. It brought up many happy memories of the long ago and many sad thoughts as well, but so few who were there when life was all sunshine before war had saddened our hearts with death and destruction.

Again thanking you I am most
sincerely,
(Mrs) Gertrude Curtright.

of the Oklahoma Hardware and Implement Dealers' association.
While riding in a railway coach between Richmond and Norfolk, Va., former Jun. Alton B. Parker of N Y and the wife of Governor Swann son of Virginia narrowly escaped being shot by a bullet fired from the outside.
Bad sick headaches, biliousness or constipation are quickly relieved by De-Witt's Little Early Risers. Small pill, sure pill, safe pill
